

healthTIDE is a movement of connected partners working towards the same goal.

healthTIDE unites, connects, and aligns multi-sector partners across Wisconsin who are working to make the healthy choice the easy choice and reduce health disparities so that everyone has the opportunity to thrive. We bring partners together to create lasting policy, system, and environmental changes related to nutrition and physical activity.

healthTIDE is supported by a backbone staff, advised by a leadership council with statewide representation, and includes opportunities to engage in settings-based Teams with diverse groups of connected partners.

healthTIDE Teams - The growing movement currently has stakeholder teams working in the following areas

Active Communities

Healthy Food Retail

Schools

Early Childhood

How does healthTIDE work?

Through meaningful connections and a commitment to aligning activities, partners can maximize their impact.

Obesity is a complex issue that requires a systems-based approach and will only be solved if everyone participates. Effectively addressing barriers to health require sustainable local and statewide efforts that are connected and aligned. It is only through the teamwork of a diverse set of partners with a wide range of knowledge, skills, and influence to create solutions that we will realize meaningful change.

Where do you fit in?

Partners are given opportunities to be part of something bigger and advance their work towards a statewide agenda, while being informed of:

- Progress, successes, and Team outcomes.
- Funding opportunities and timely resources.

Connections are fostered between partner organizations and coalitions to collaborate in pursuit of advancing policy, systems, and environmental change. Together we will multiply impact across the state and grow the movement.

healthTIDE embraces the Collective Impact framework as a model to create health in places where people live, learn, work, and play. By connecting people, organizations, and resources we can positively affect policies, systems, and environments in Wisconsin communities. Learn more about Collective Impact at healthTIDE.org.

To learn more about or join a team, please email us: host@healthTIDE.org
Visit us healthTIDE.org and follow us on social media

